

There is always something growin' on here even in the winter. The bay window is going full tilt with plants craning their necks for light which is starting to last longer. The golden cherry tomatoes and cayenne peppers are coming along in the led light Aerogardens. Some quibble with the "taste" but I think with the nutrient they are just fine maybe better than some soil.

<http://mycitygarden.net/>