

Merry month of May in mycitygarden!

Sunday, 15 May 2022 09:51 - Last Updated Sunday, 15 May 2022 10:20

Cool and foggy today and the plants are loving it.

It has been a really slow start this year due to the cold temperatures. Finally getting some rain which keeps the plants clean... The Pak Choi starts from this past February are getting large. Strawberries are stirring in the fence boxes. The Golden Cherry tomatoes are now hardening off outside in the cool weather. Starts of Green Zebra Tomato, Mini Red Peppers and Basil are waiting in the wings. The beautiful Clematis has started to bloom, a sure sign it's time to plant the tomatoes in the raised bed box. This year Lily of the Valley, Freesia and Coleus plants have been put in the shaded patio and under the Dwarf Bartlett Pear tree.

And now for the show...
